M. J. Riordan has been appointed by the supreme council to the honorable position of supreme director in the Young Men's Institute. The local order feels flattered that the choice of one of the leading officials of the order should fall upon one of its members.

The Kingman Mineral Wealth has the following misinformation about two of the members of the Coconino county bar: "Ashurst and Loy, the visiting attorneys, are self-made men. Five years ago they were both offbearing slabs in a sawmill at Williams, and now look at them—political dictators and clever lawyers. It was thus the mighty Lincoln rose from the ranks."

Distinguished Visitors.

A party of distinguished visitors passed through yesterday morning on their way to Prescott, Congress and Phoenix. The party traveled in a Michigan Central railway special car, and was composed of the following gentlemen: General R. A. Alger, ex-secretary of war, and his brother, Charles Alger, Col. F. J. Hecker, Henry Russell, general solicitor for the Michigan Central railway; George B. Russell, Detroit, Mich.

They were joined here by Governor Murphy, who came up the day before for that purpose. They are largely interested in mines in Yavapai county, and their visit means a good deal to the mining interests of Arizona.

The industrial feature of the University of Arizona will be enlarged during the present vacation by the erection of a machinery building, in which practical mechanics will be taught. Students will be enabled to learn the trade of a machinist, blacksmith or carpenter, as well as other trades. This is practical education, and will be exceedingly popular with Arizonans. Manual training has become one of the leading features of many of the new and progressive colleges of the United States. Arizona proposes to keep well at the head of the procession.—Tucson Star.
